

SMOKE LAW HELD BAR TO FACTORIES

President Brandenburg, of
Board of Trade, Asks Less
Stringent Regulation.

Modification of the smoke laws to permit of a wider scope of manufacturing in Washington, and the establishment of port facilities which will enable the National Capital to compete with the other coastal cities in the district, are two of the principal propositions for which the Board of Trade is asked to work in the coming year.

In his address before the annual meeting of the board last night at the Willard Hotel, President Brandenburg declared that with the expenditures for the municipal government constantly increasing through the development of the city it is necessary that some method be devised to relieve the ever-increasing burden of taxation put upon the people of the District. He suggested encouragement of manufacturers as the remedy, and proposed a modification of the smoke laws to attract such establishments.

Wants Deeper Channel.
That proper transportation facilities may be had to accommodate the present and prospective business of the city, Mr. Brandenburg would have the channel of the Potomac deepened so that both Washington and Alexandria may once more become ports at which vessels of reasonable draft may find docking.

The subject of port facilities found further treatment in the recommendations of the river and harbor committee which included provision for a ship canal to connect the Eastern Branch with Chesapeake bay, to be constructed and owned by the Federal Government, dredging of the channel of the Potomac river from its mouth to Washington and the deepening of the harbor of this city and Georgetown to twenty-eight feet; dredging of the Anacostia from its mouth to the navy yard bridge and the establishment by the government of a system of permanent docks along the Anacostia from its mouth to Benning bridge.

Mr. Brandenburg defended the half-and-half plan, asserting that any effort to destroy the provisions made in the organic act would be injurious to the District, and added that the mere suggestion of the subject has already cast such a cloud upon real estate in the District that opportunity for sale is reduced to a minimum.

He denounced the "fake" auction houses conducted in Washington as reflecting upon the city and urged the membership for the board to resolve itself into a unit in striving to obtain legislation to prevent the continuance of such establishments.

Important recommendations for the development and beautification of the city were included in the reports of the standing committees. That on parks and reservations urged the purchase of the Patterson estate and the Dean property at Connecticut and Florida avenues for public parks.

The public buildings committee asks the construction of a new Eastern High School to accommodate 1,500 pupils; the erection of a new armory; new buildings to replace the First, Fourth, Seventh, and harbor police stations; provision in the first precinct for a police training school; a municipal hospital at Fourteenth and Nebraska streets northwest; a central heating plant for the group of school buildings at Seventh and O streets northwest; a fireproof structure to replace the municipal indig house; a general storage for District supplies and a graded school building with an assembly hall to accommodate 1,000 pupils. Woodridge, and E. A. Brookland sections.

For More Water.
Both President Brandenburg and the committee on water supply emphasized the need of prompt provision for an increased water supply.

Other important recommendations were a permanent and adequate retirement and pension fund for police and firemen; an increase in the number of patrolmen; increased pay for police captains, lieutenants and sergeants; a memorial bridge to connect the parking system with Arlington National Cemetery; reconstruction of the Aqueduct bridge; vesting of the District Commissioners with authority to purchase surplus land adjacent to bridges to preclude the marring of the approaches, and a public school teachers' retirement fund.

C. J. Gockeler, the retiring secretary, in presenting his report, urged co-operation between the trade and civic bodies in an effort to prevent duplication of endeavor. He proposed that the Board of Trade center its efforts on promoting civic projects; that the Chamber of Commerce be permitted to handle exclusively all matters relating to conventions held in this city; and that the field of promoting wholesale and retail trade be left to the Retail Merchants' Association.

The membership of the board was shown to be 1,353, and Treasurer Walter H. Klopfer reported a balance of $1,656 in favor of the board, gained during the year, and investment of nearly $2,000 of the board's funds.

The ten directors elected were: Theodore W. Noyes, John Jay Edson, Odell R. Smith, J. Harry Cunningham, Edward H. Droop, Samuel J. Prescott, John Poole, James F. Oyster, Frank P. Reaside, and William H. Saunders.

DISTRICT VOTE URGED BY EAST WASHINGTON

It was announced by Captain Potter that a bill calling for the election of five Commissioners will be introduced at the next session.

A letter was read from the Commissioners acknowledging receipt of a letter from the association asking that a date be set for a public hearing to determine public sentiment regarding the acquisition of a site for the new Eastern High School, and urging the selection of reservation 13.

A resolution calling upon Congress for legislation providing for the election of "the governing officials" and the taxing of citizens "in like manner as the citizens of other cities of the same size are taxed" was introduced by Capt. William M. Potter. Following discussion, the second part of the resolution was rejected. Charles A. Shields and others declaring in favor of a plan by which the Federal Government would contribute a stated amount to the support of the local government.

Mr. Shields said that one difficulty in the readjustment of fiscal relations is that property in the District is over-assessed $20,000,000.
